

Women's Tennis Archive Information

The women's tennis historical archive was compiled based on available statistics and records beginning with the 1975-76 season. No records are available from 1972-73 through 1974-75.

If a player had statistics for only parts of the seasons that they played, her career totals were still calculated based on the available information. Despite any missing information, all of the career and season records are accurate.

There were several seasons in which a player's overall results were available, but not their records at specific positions in the lineup (1-6 singles or 1-3 doubles). The career and single-season records for wins, etc. at specific lineup positions are based on the information available from all seasons.
