
University Scholarships

Binghamton University proudly offers its own institutionally based scholarships, fellowships and awards through the auspices of the Binghamton University Foundation, established in 1957. More than 200 institutional programs totaling more than one-half million dollars are available to the students of the University. Funds have been made available for these programs through the generosity of donors who wish to support the continuing educational efforts of Binghamton University students.

Scholarships are established as either endowed or restricted accounts, according to the preference of the donor. Scholarships may be awarded to students based on matriculation status, school and department affiliation, financial need, academic achievement, community service, county residency, grade level and expected graduation date.

Unless otherwise indicated, scholarships are available to undergraduates only. The availability of funds may influence the scholarship amount and whether it is regularly awarded.

Application

The application process for scholarships varies, as specified by the donor. Some may require separate application, but the majority are applied for through financial aid application. If application is needed in addition to or aside from filing the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA), this will be noted.

All need-based scholarships require the filing of the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA). The FAFSA is processed by an external agency in contract with the U.S. Department of Education. Information regarding financial aid eligibility of FAFSA filers is received by the office of Student Financial Aid and Employment shortly after the FAFSA has been processed by the federal contractor. Incomplete or illegible data will cause an interruption in the student's application for scholarship consideration and may cause a student to lose such consideration. The University filing date for financial aid is currently March 1. Early filing of the FAFSA is advised for scholarship consideration.

Because the scholarship is made for the next academic year, it is considered part of the financial aid package. Should the selection be made after the original package is offered, and should there be no remaining unmet need, an adjustment to the financial aid package is required, starting with loans, then work programs and finally need-based grants. Both Federal Pell Grants and New York State Tuition Assistance Program Grants are untouched in the adjustment process, as they are entitlements.

Selection

Recipients are selected according to criteria set by the donor in the gift agreement with the Foundation. Scholarships requiring committee selection of the recipient will be noted within the scholarship descriptions that follow. Interested applicants should check campus publications and communications, e.g., Pipe Dream, Inside and Dateline, for announcements of scholarships that require separate application outside the financial aid process.

Most need-based scholarships are selected in March and April, shortly after the financial aid filing date, when offers for the next academic year are made. If the scholarship is merit-based, the applicant's academic records are reviewed. Usually, a minimum GPA of 3.0 (or as specified by the donor) is required for review. Scholarship funds are depleted rapidly once selection begins and are not replenished until the next program year.

Notification

Scholarship recipients are normally notified through the Notice of Financial Aid Offer, sent by the office of Student Financial Aid and Employment after selection has been made. If a special committee has selected the scholarship recipient, a separate letter may be sent by the committee or individual in charge of scholarship selection.
