SFJAZZ Collective: The Music of Stevie Wonder
Thursday, October 6, 2011 | 8 p.m.

Founded in 2004, the SFJAZZ Collective is an all-star ensemble consisting of eight of the finest performers/composers in jazz today. The collective is not rooted in any one musician’s concept of jazz but rather a workshop band that features a changing line-up and seeks to contribute their own unique sounds, styles and voices — making it a true collective.

Each year, SFJAZZ performs a new list of compositions by and in honor of a jazz master the likes of Ornette Coleman, McCoy Tyner, Thelonious Monk and Horace Silver, in addition to new pieces by the collective itself. But this year, for the first time, SFJAZZ ventures into the pop genre, featuring music composed and inspired by Stevie Wonder.

Eight new songs commissioned for this tour, along with Stevie Wonder compositions, are due out on a live CD this fall.
