STUDENT  EXHIBITION

APRIL 30 - MAY 29, 1972

University Art Gallery

State University of New York at Binghamton

FOREWORD

In the past years the studio faculty at SUNY-Binghamton has attempted to increase its intensification of instruction in the areas of drawing, design, printmaking, painting and sculpture. The degree to which this becomes successful depends upon the commitment of the student and the support provided the faculty by the university.

In my opinion the quality and diversity of the work produced, as represented in the recent annual student exhibitions, reflects this commitment on the part of the student. As a new discipline in the university the studio section has produced students who are exhibiting in juried regional exhibitions as undergraduates. This is usually found to be in the case of graduate students in studio.

One mark of distinction in this exhibition, as witnessed in the past few student exhibitions, is the marked diversity of approach to conceptual thinking. Our students are not herded or channeled into a single mold but are encouraged to search, discover and develop images according to the convictions that best suit their current intellectual-emotional peak

As I reflect back upon the past eight years of work produced here I now begin to relax a little and say, "We have a good group of students who are beginning to sense what commitment to making art really means and we certainly have a studio faculty that I am proud of."
