Student Show '82

April 30 - May 30

*University Art Gallery
SUNY-Binghamton*

Introduction

The annual student exhibition concludes the SUNY-Binghamton art exhibition schedule. The Gallery has been given over to work which is in some sense a summation of the year's activity in the various disciplines of the studio art program. The work has been selected by faculty members of their particular disciplines and as such represents an overview of work done in the department.

As the title implies, this was work initiated by a need for study and inquiry. The impulses of seeing and making can be formed during the year by a study of formal visual elements; the ways in which these elements relate to and define experience; and how these concepts can be translated into technical and material possibilities. The energy and variety of approaches and answers to these issues are the strength of the exhibition. There are many directions and personal intentions represented by this work: a commitment to a life in the visual arts to those interested in experimenting those questions and activities that constitute the visual arts. Students participating in this exhibition share a willingness to reveal something for us of themselves and we thank them for that and trust they will also reveal something of themselves for themselves.
