Crises and Transitions in the Capitalist World-Economy

Transitions in Global Labor History, 1250-2010: Entanglements, Synchronicities and Combinations on a Local and Global Scale

Andrea Komlosy

Andrea Komlosy is Associate Professor at the Department for Economic and Social History, University of Vienna, Austria. She is spending the 2014–2015 academic year at Harvard University where her research agenda is dedicated to global economic and labor history. Her publications encompass textile regions (in a comparative approach), textile and labor museums (and how to assess various forms of labor), and border and border regions in a long-term perspective—using world-systems methods, whether a research question is related to a local, regional or global topic.

Friday, November 14, 2014
1:30 p.m.
Fernand Braudel Center
Academic A, Room 330

For information, visit the Fernand Braudel Center website at fbc.binghamton.edu | 607-777-4924