

HUMAN RIGHTS
INSTITUTE

BINGHAMTON UNIVERSITY

Photo by Jonathan Cohen/ University Photographer

Annual Report 2025

Contact Information

Website: <https://www.binghamton.edu/institutes/human-rights/>

Email: hri@binghamton.edu

Facebook: @BingHumanRights

Instagram: @BingHumanRights

Threads: @BingHumanRights

LinkedIn: www.linkedin.com/company/binghamton-university-human-rights-institute/

Scan to access our Linktree.

How to make a gift today to advance human rights

Help us provide high impact student experiences in human rights, advance faculty research, and continue our robust human rights programming on campus. Each gift contributes to internships, research, and promoting understanding and respect for human rights. We welcome gifts dedicated to specific areas.

HOW TO GIVE:

Please make checks payable to 'Binghamton University Foundation' and write HRI Account #11159 on the memo line.

MAIL ADDRESS

Binghamton University Foundation
% Gift and Donor Records
PO Box 6005
Binghamton, NY, 13902-6005

CAMPUS MAIL

Binghamton University Foundation
Gift and Donor Records
Old O'Connor Hall (OO-G046)

You can also scan the QR code below to access the donation page.

Scan to access the donation page.

TABLE OF CONTENTS

A Message from the Directors	5
People	7
Working Groups	10
Programming & Events	14
Human Rights Labs	24
Human Rights in the News	25
Awards & Recognition	26
Student Internships	27
Curricular Highlights	28
Selected Publications by HRI Affiliates	29
Our Partners	31

A MESSAGE FROM THE DIRECTORS

We entered 2025 facing new challenges in researching, studying, and working on behalf of human rights as both the language of rights and the institutions that sustain them have come under sustained attack. These threats to rights have made us all the more committed to what we can do as an institute. We've been fortunate over the last year for the continued support of our university administration and for the insights of our extraordinary external board of advisors and from a network of human rights centers around the country as we develop and share strategies for advancing our work in the current moment.

The external challenges notwithstanding, 2025 was a year of both stability and growth for the Human Rights Institute. With support from the Provost, we were able to welcome Kate Austin to our team as HRI's new, full-time administrative assistant. That title does little justice to the skills Kate has brought, and we've been able to expand course offerings and programming and launch new research projects with the support she provides. We also hosted our first hybrid external board meeting, with many members convening on campus for the first time. With their expertise in both state-wide and international human rights issues, the board helped us to better articulate ways of pursuing both academic and public facing work, and one of our takeaways was the need to revise our mission given the change in the landscape of higher education and human rights more broadly.

Those insights have shaped our work throughout 2025 and into the present. On the research front, and in addition to the publications cited later in this annual report, we have launched the Language Lab, in which a team of students led by our graduate assistant Nimisha Sinha is coding cancelled federal grants to better understand how various executive orders and policy directives are shaping the way we talk about human rights. We have also just launched a new project on states of exception which aims to produce academic scholarship on new approaches to theories of exception and emergency and to track how declarations of emergency are wielded worldwide and their impact on human rights. Both projects continue in 2026.

Earlier in 2025, we completed the third phase of the funded Women Peacebuilders in Exile Project. After a literature review and semi-structured interviews, faculty, graduate students, and undergraduates hosted many of the interviewees for an all-day workshop on campus. We currently have a set of three articles in preparation regarding the insights from the project. One of the undergraduate student participants also published her research for the project in the peer-reviewed Binghamton University Undergraduate Journal. Also with undergraduate research support, we completed "Desert Dumps" project on EU complicity with the deportation and abandonment of Black migrants in North Africa (publication forthcoming). We have multiple book projects in various stages of development, including edited collections and co-authored works that feature HRI directors and affiliates.

The success of our winter and summer courses speaks to and sustains our minor. In the last year, we have almost doubled our minor, and have our largest graduating class this spring. One of our strengths in this area is fostering student research. Last spring every single student in the Human Rights Source Project stream had a peer-reviewed publication in the Binghamton Law Quarterly, and eight of the students further developed their work for publication in the BUJ (the issue appeared in Feb. 2026). We hear repeatedly from alumni/ae that these experiences and the internships we facilitate have been foundational to their professional development. Additional funds have also allowed us to offer our own in-house courses (as opposed to primarily crosslisting with other departments): Human Rights in post-1945 History in the spring and Indigenous and Human Rights in the fall.

As we continue into 2026, we are focused on our three main areas of work: growing our human rights minor and the experiential opportunities we create for students; promoting both faculty and student research (through research assistantships, manuscript review workshops, conference organizing, and peer-reviewed publications); and being a strong institutional partner to other human rights centers and institutes and to the other social justice initiatives on campus.

David L. Cingranelli

Distinguished Professor of Political Science

Offices: AA348 and LNG56

Email: davidc@binghamton.edu

Alexandra S. Moore

Professor and Chair, Department of English

Offices: AA346 and LN1149

Email: amoore@binghamton.edu

PEOPLE

Internal Advisory Board

John Cheng, Associate Professor of Asian and Asian American Studies, Binghamton University

Divya Gupta, Assistant Professor of Environmental Studies, Binghamton University

Suzy Lee, Associate Professor and Director of the MS in Human Rights and Human Development, Binghamton University

Chandiren Valayden, Assistant Professor of Human Development, Binghamton University

External Advisory Board

Amy Hyatt, Class of '78, Ambassador of Palau 2025-2020, US Department of State

Todd Landman, Research Director and Professor of Political Science, The Rights Lab, University of Nottingham

Aaron Mair, Class of '84, Honorary Doctorate 2018, Director of 'Forever Adirondacks' Campaign, Adirondack Council, Former President of the Sierra Club

Eric Schwartz, Class of '79, Former President of Refugees International, Former Assistant Secretary of State for Population, Refugees and Migration

Joseph R. Slaughter, Associate Professor of English and Comparative Literature; Executive Director, Institute for the Study of Human Rights, Columbia University

Sunita Toor, Professor, Institute of Law and Social Sciences; Head of Human Rights and Social Justice, Division of Law and Criminology and the Helena Kennedy Centre for International Justice, Sheffield Hallam University

Staff & Student Assistants

Kathryn Austin, Assistant to Directors

Liyang Dong, Graduate Assistant

Caryn Gagnon, Undergraduate Research Assistant

Say Lay Paw, Undergraduate Assistant

Nimisha Sinha, Graduate Assistant

Faculty Affiliates

Amir Ahmadi Arian, English

Anne Bailey, History

Kanisha Bond, Political Science

Birgit Brander Rasmussen, English

Barrett Brenton, Center for Civic Engagement

Tina Chang, English, General Literature and Rhetoric

Rosemary Collier, Nursing

Sidney Dement, German and Russian Studies

Shahab Derhami, School of Management

Elizabeth DiGangi, Anthropology

Deborah Elliston, Anthropology

Zeynep Ertem, Systems Science and Industrial Engineering

Jakob Feinig, Human Development

Mikhail Filippov, Political Science

Susan Wolcott, Economics

Laura Warren Hill, Human Development

Douglas Holmes, Anthropology

Michael Jacobson, Office of Strategic Research Initiatives

Kristina Marty, CCPA Public Administration
and Policy

Miesha Marzell, Public Health

Loretta Mason-Williams, Teaching, Learning and Educational Leadership

Saeideh Mirghorbani, School of Management

Sarah Nance, Art and Design

Lubna Omar, Anthropology

Sabina Perrino, Anthropology and Linguistics

Kathleen Provinzano, CCPA Community
Schools Program

Belinda Ramirez, Sociology and Global Public Health

Anthony Reeves, Philosophy

David Schaffer, CCPA Public Administration
and Policy

Kent Schull, History

Stacy Shipe, CCPA Social Work

Olga Shvetsova, Political Science

Anne-Caroline Sieffert, Romance Languages and Literatures

Kaitlyn Sorenson, Comparative Literature

Chandiren Valayden, CCPA Human Development

Leo Wilton, CCPA Human Development

Marguerite Wilson, CCPA Human Development

Wan Yu, Geography

Denise Yull, CCPA Human Development

Lisa Yun, English

Photo by Jonathan Cohen/ University Photographer

External Affiliates

Stephanie Athey, Visiting Scholar

Vanessa Farr, Senior Advisor, North Star Transition, Co-Director at Mycelium Media Colab

Hanna Musiol, Professor, Modern and Contemporary Literature, Norwegian University of Science and Technology

Belinda Walzer, Associate Professor, English and Rhetoric, Appalachian State University

WORKING GROUPS

Advanced Data Analytics and Global Patterns in Human Rights

David Cingranelli and Mikhail Filippov

In 2025, we submitted our inaugural research proposal to the National Science Foundation. Additionally, we applied for a networking grant intended to facilitate travel for doctoral students and junior faculty from Binghamton and Nottingham Universities to attend workshops on human trafficking. Although the grants were not funded, we held a day-long workshop on human trafficking and welcomed Todd Landman of the Rights Lab at the University of Nottingham to campus.

We are currently focused on developing research papers for presentation at professional conferences and eventual publication. We have successfully presented several papers, including "Implementation of Large Language Models for Human Rights Classification" (co-authored by Michael Magid, Zeynep Ertem, Jeremy Blackburn, David Cingranelli, Skip Mark, and Todd Landman) at the 2025 Annual Meeting of the American Political Science Association in Vancouver, Canada. Additionally, we are in the process of writing several journal articles, including: "Grouping Countries Based on Their Human Rights Trajectories: Insights from Supervised Machine Learning" (by J. David Shaffer, Mikhail Filippov, David Cingranelli, Roberta Marques Villaca Mnezes, and James Sears) and "Implementation of Large Language Models for Human Rights Classification" (by Michael Magid, Zeynep Ertem, Jeremy Blackburn, David Cingranelli, Skip Mark, and Todd Landman).

Capitalism and Human Rights

Suzy Lee and Jakob Feinig

With the publication of some of its research, the Capitalism working group is reconfiguring its focus to be a monthly reading/discussion group to address the changes in global capitalism as the Western-dominated period of free trade seems to be coming to a close. The group aims eventually to generate new research collaborations exploring the impact of these changes on human rights.

CIRIGHTS and Measuring Human Rights Data Project

David Cingranelli and Mikhail Filippov

The CIRIGHTS Data Project (2013-present) is co-directed by Skip Mark from the University of Rhode Island, David Cingranelli and Mikhail Filippov from Binghamton University, and David Richards from the University of Connecticut. The primary objective of the CIRIGHTS project is to build upon the methodology of its predecessor, the CIRI Data Project, by annually updating the CIRI human rights scores. The project aims to expand the original list of scored rights to better encompass the comprehensive range of rights outlined in the International Bill of Human Rights while supplementing human coding with machine coding to generate more scores in a shorter time frame. The project released its latest scores and the 2024 Global Rights Project (GRIP) Report in December 2025.

The project directors collaborated with students from their respective institutions to update the human rights scores for 2023 based on reports issued in 2024. Their forthcoming book, Science and the Study of Human Rights, is expected to be published in 2026 as part of SUNY Press's Human Rights Series. Additionally, a journal article utilizing the CIRIGHTS data, co-authored by Skip Mark and David Cingranelli, was published in 2025: "The Human Rights Sequence Theory of Atrocity: A Comparative Analysis" in the Journal of Comparative Policy Analysis: Research and Practice (2025): 1-17.

They also have several articles underway that provide comparative, cross-national analyses of human trafficking, indigenous rights, prisoners' rights, and group-based discrimination. Together with Rod Abouharb from University College London, they are working to broaden the scope of the Data Project to include additional indicators of comparative national achievements in economic and social rights.

Cultural Representations of Human Rights

Alexandra Moore

This working group engages faculty and graduate students from both national and international colleges and universities on multifaceted research projects. Its goal is to promote excellent scholarship in the growing, transdisciplinary field of human rights in literary and cultural studies as well as to promote intellectual community. Activities include symposia, conference panels, and manuscript reviews for group members as well as various publication projects. The group also convenes for in-person manuscript review workshops to prepare chapter and articles for publication.

Cultural Representations of Human Rights (cont.)

Alexandra Moore

Food Justice Working Group

Barrett Brenton and Valerie Imbruce

After the COVID-19 pandemic, food insecurity became a major issue in Broome County. In response, Binghamton University faculty and students formed the COVID-19 Food Justice Working Group (FJWG) to study and address food system challenges. At the same time, the Broome County Food Council (BCFC) emerged as a key resource for coordinating food access across the county.

Working together, FJWG and BCFC demonstrate how universities and communities can partner to address local social issues through research, education, and collaboration. Their work combines academic expertise with community knowledge to promote food justice.

FJWG members published their applied research in Practicing Anthropology, highlighting inequities in the local food system. Through workshops, surveys, and community-engaged research, the group helped inform The Story of Food Insecurity in Broome County and the 2024 Broome County Food Access Plan, which outlines strategies to improve food access in underserved communities. See the partial list of publications in this annual report for more of the group's recent work.

The FJWG continues to support existing organizations through research, outreach, and student engagement, with a focus on sustainable, community-driven solutions.

URL: <https://www.binghamton.edu/news/story/5964/binghamton-university-consortium-leverages-academic-interests-to-examine-local-food-systems>

Human Trafficking Data Project (HTDP)

Suzy Lee

The HTDP brings together a coalition of researchers, trafficked persons, students, service providers, advocates, and government representatives to understand the conditions that contribute to human trafficking and to address existing gaps in anti-trafficking policy. A primary focus of the group is on sex trafficking from a human rights-centered perspective and in relation to other forms of human trafficking. The HTDP has multifaceted objectives: promoting historical, sociological and cultural research on trafficking; identifying the human rights needs of trafficked persons in specific locations; developing training materials for service providers that promote survivor and human rights-centered approaches (as opposed to punitive or rescue-oriented approaches); and developing policies to prevent and address both domestic and international trafficking. As the project continues, the HTDP will share research, promote the interdisciplinary study of trafficking, and identify strategies that pertain to anti-trafficking initiatives in diverse locations. The current focus of the group is on a data-gathering from U.S. Department of State T Visas.

Human Trafficking Data Project (cont.)

Suzy Lee

The Human Trafficking Working Group is currently processing a tranche of data received from the U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Service on the T Visa. The first papers based on this data should be completed and submitted for publication this year.

Upstate New York Policing Research Consortium

Laura Warren Hill

Over the past year, the Upstate New York Policing Research Consortium continued to grow as a regional hub for justice-oriented, community-engaged scholarship on policing and the carceral state. In 2025, UNY-PRC supported multiple writing retreats and workshops that brought together faculty, graduate students, undergraduates, and community researchers to advance articles, book chapters, grant proposals, and public-facing research. Consortium members and interns presented original research at national conferences, including the Association for Humanist Sociology, the National Women's Studies Association, and the American Studies Association, contributing scholarship on police violence, wrongful convictions, racialized media narratives, mental health crisis response, and the gendered dimensions of state violence. Several peer-reviewed publications emerged from this work, reflecting UNY-PRC's commitment to rigorous analysis grounded in local and regional histories of policing.

PROGRAMMING & EVENTS

Spring 2025

A talk by Visiting Environmental Sociologist Dr. Manuel Vallée

Co-sponsored by HRI | January 23, 2025

In his lecture, Dr. Manuel Vallée shed light on how pesticide use has become normalized and how government agencies contribute to that. He examined New Zealand's 2002-2004 urban aerial pesticide spraying campaign to eliminate an invasive moth to illuminate how government agencies endeavor to control public resistance through tactics of knowledge management.

Confronting Fascism: A Talk by Dr. Florian Wenninger

February 13, 2025

This lecture by Florian Wenninger (Institute for Historical Social Research in Vienna) focused on the organizational history of the military association and placed it in the context of recent research on politically motivated violence in the European interwar period.

Book Launch: A Minimally Good Life by Nicole Hassoun

February 21, 2025

Hassoun’s book, A Minimally Good Life (Oxford UP, 2024), considers what we owe to each other, and what we can claim, out of respect for our common humanity. In a panel discussion, Hassoun was joined in a panel discussion by George Sher (Rice University), Liam Murphy (NYU School of Law), Johann Go (University of Strathclyde, Glasgow) and Carol C. Gould (CUNY Graduate Center).

Decolonizing Higher Education: Engaging Haudenosaunee Partners at Binghamton University

Co-sponsored by HRI | February 21, 2025

Students joined a panel of local Haudenosaunee leaders in discussing possibilities like new courses, a major/minor, hiring Indigenous faculty, and community-driven research initiatives.

Human Rights Writing Workshop

March 3, 2025

This workshop invited students and scholars working within human rights literacy studies to share current and new work in the field and to gain valuable feedback and insights from peers reviewers prior to publication. Participants read each other's papers in advance of the workshop and then spent time together on the short presentations followed by generative discussions of each project.

China's Human Rights Revisionism: "No More Universal?"

March 4, 2025

Magnus Fiskesjö was educated in his native Sweden, and at the University of Chicago where he received a joint PhD in Anthropology and in East Asian Languages and Civilizations, in 2000. He previously worked at Sweden's embassies in Beijing and Tokyo; and as director of the Museum of Far Eastern Antiquities, in Stockholm. Since 2005, he has been teaching in Anthropology and Asian Studies at Cornell University. His research involves political anthropology, genocide and ethnic relations, as well as archaeology, museums, heritage and repatriation issues, mostly in East and Southeast Asia.

MSHR's Lubna Chaudry
Lecture Series:
"Organizing Farmworkers
in Central New York" - A Conversation with Sergio
Saravia

Co-sponsored by HRI
March 6, 2025

Film Screening & Conversation with Professors Anne
Bailey, Robyn Cope
& Sharon Bryant

Co-Sponsored by HRI
April 1, 2025

Women Peacebuilders in Exile: Keynote Address by Sarah Hunaidi

Co-sponsored by HRI, CMENAS and I-GMAP | April 2, 2025

“Writing, Resistance, and Advocacy: Women’s Voices in the Struggle for Syria”

Sarah Hunaidi is a Syrian writer, advocate, and a member of the Syrian Women’s Political Movement. She writes in both English and Arabic, with her work appearing in Foreign Policy, The Independent, Chatham House, BuzzFeed News, The New Arab, and other publications. She provides expert commentary on broader human rights, as well as refugee and gender issues, and has been featured on NPR, BBC, and Al Jazeera.

She is the founder of Sarah Hunaidi Consulting & Professional Services, where she collaborates with local and international organizations on communications and advocacy strategies. She holds a Master’s degree in Middle Eastern Studies from Harvard University and a Bachelor’s in International Studies from DePaul University.

Exiled from Syria in 2014 due to her opposition to the Assad regime, she has since been working on her first book, which explores the life and disappearance of activist Samir al-Khalil, delving into themes of exile, siege, and survival.

Women Peacebuilders in Exile Coding Seminar

March 20, 2025

The research group met for a coding seminar to compare NVivo computer coding to manual coding of our dataset. The participants examined how NVivo analyzes themes, relationships, and resonances, and discussed comparative coding frameworks for ethnographic data. The seminar underscored the value of manual coding for its attention to the nuances of ethnographic research across different contexts.

A Reading and Conversation with Chris Abani

April 9, 2025

In a special collaboration with the Human Rights Institute, the Creative Writing Program welcomed novelist, poet, essayist, playwright and screenwriter Chris Abani. Abani is the author of poetry collections including Smoking the Bible and Sanctificum, the novels Song for Night and Graceland, and the essay collection The Face, among many other books.

Abani's work has been translated into French, Italian, Spanish, German, Swedish, Romanian, Hebrew, Macedonian, Ukrainian, Portuguese, Dutch, Bosnian and Serbian. Through his TED Talks and other speaking engagements Abani is known as an international voice on humanitarianism, art, ethics, and our shared political responsibility.

Insurgent Ethnography Conference

April 24-25, 2025

Co-sponsored by HRI

The 4th iteration of the Insurgent Ethnography Conference consisted of six panels over the two days, covering topics like territory and land, diasporic Blackness, and university-community engagement.

Something is in the Air: Environmental Defense in Troubling Times

A Talk by Patricia Rodriguez

April 24, 2025

Patricia Rodriguez is a former college professor who is now working for the environmental NGO Earthworks. She leads the International Optical Gas Imaging (OGI) program in Latin America, supporting grassroots organizations and communities impacted by emissions and contamination from the oil and gas industry to visible otherwise invisible gases, and advocating for substantive change. Throughout the past years, she has witnessed the hopes and difficulties faced particularly by several indigenous and rural small farmers as they defend their territories, rivers, livelihoods and their health from the impacts of mega-development energy projects. Through organizing, communities present strong challenges to these major enterprises, at great risk to their lives.

Human Rights Source Project: Highly Classified: American Contradictions and the Parable of Guantánamo

May 4, 2025

Human Rights Source Project (cont.)

The exhibition and event, held at the HCS Art Center in Vestal, NY, aimed to bridge cultural divides within and across communities through conversation, and art. The exhibition was designed and installed by students and HCS staff and volunteers, featuring art by Sabri Al Qurashi a former Guantánamo Bay detainee, as well as documentation of the Source Project Human Rights students' research on local human rights concerns, the multi-media exhibit also included a public video-link conversation with several former detainees.

Fall 2025

During the fall semester, the Binghamton University Human Rights Institute (HRI) celebrated the work of several distinguished guests and scholars on human rights issues, ranging from genocide to labor rights. HRI hosted several events, including a film series, public talks, and a book launch, that featured work about human rights violations in the Caribbean, Africa, and Eastern Europe.

Screenings with Stephanie Black: 'Life and Debt' & 'H-2 Worker'

October 20-21, 2025

BU alum and filmmaker, Stephanie Black, joined students for a screening of her films, Life and Debt and H-2 Worker. She also met with graduate students in the Cinema department to talk about filmmaking.

Book Launch: The Banyamulenge Soldier: Genocide Between Congo and Rwanda by Chris Davey

November 12, 2025

Dr. Chris Davey celebrated the launch of his new book, The Banyamulenge Soldier: Genocide Between Congo and Rwanda (University of Michigan Press), this November. Davey is a lecturer in Political Science and the Human Rights Institute. His new book, The Banyamulenge Soldier: Genocide Between Congo and Rwanda, explores Congolese Tutsi combatant identities and perceptions of genocide. It is the first of its kind, telling stories of Congolese Tutsi soldiers who come from across the African Great Lakes region and the diaspora. Dr. Davey was joined by Aurore Vermylen (UCLouvain and University of California Santa Cruz), Nicolas Habarugira (Binghamton University), and Sellah Martens (Binghamton University) in a panel discussion about the book.

From left to right: Sellah Martens, Charles Sebuharara, Aurore Vermylen, Paul Macharia, Chris Davey, Chloe Cairncross, Amethyst Rodriguez, Nicolas Habarugira, Frank Okyere

HUMAN RIGHTS LABS

Human Rights Language Lab

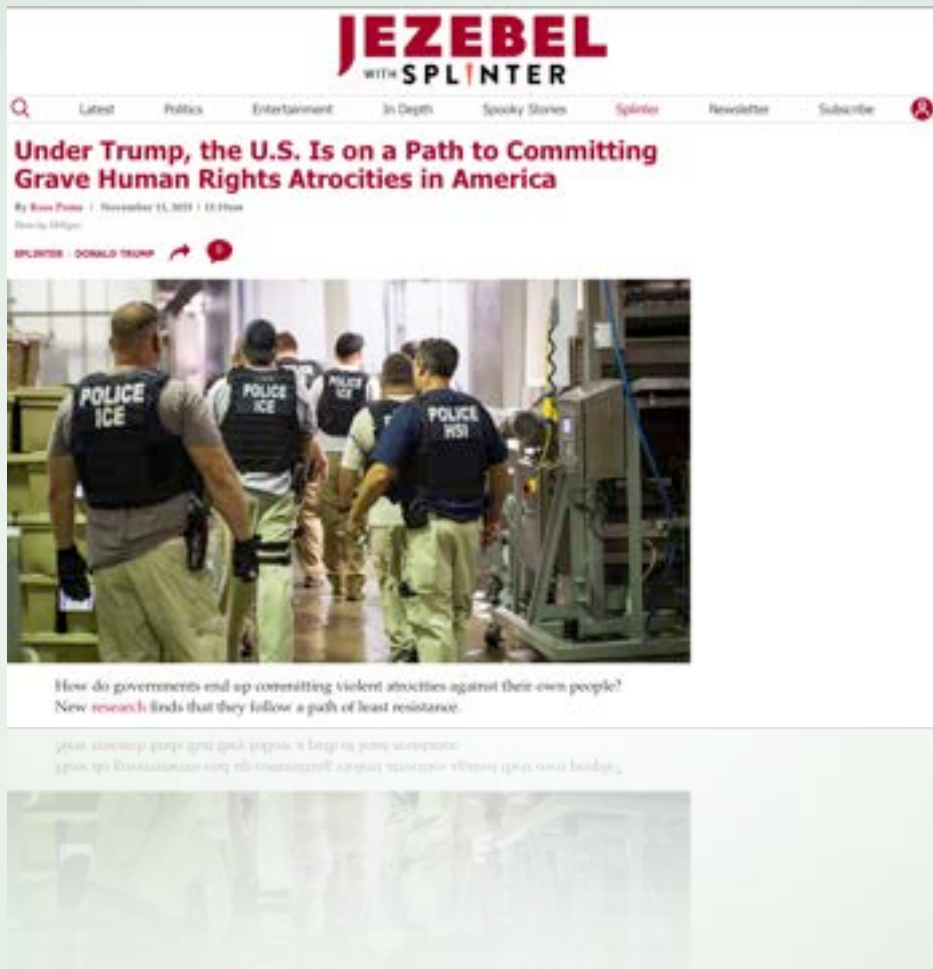

This new project researches the changing trends of grant writing and academic language in the U.S. in light of recent Executive Orders from the current administration. Participants in this project — including our student research assistants — analyze recent orders regarding acceptable topics and processes for oversight of projects receiving federal funding. The group examines the impact of the orders on scholarly production and funding. Its aims are three-fold: to document changes as they are occurring, to consider the impact of the orders on knowledge production, and to consider how language and epistemology may be fruitfully coordinated in the current context. More broadly, the group is interested in exploring how knowledge is shared, framed, and legitimized in federally supported research initiatives, and will share its findings with our research community.

Torture in the National Security Imagination* Reading Group

In Fall 2025, a reading group consisting of graduate students and faculty met over several weeks to read the Human Rights Institute's Visiting Scholar Stephanie Athey's book, Torture in the National Security Imagination (2024).

HUMAN RIGHTS IN THE NEWS

Under Trump, the U.S. is on a path to committing grave Human Rights atrocities in America by Ross Pome – November 13, 2025: Political scientists Dr. Skip Mark at the University of Rhode Island and Dr. David Cingranelli at Binghamton University systematically analyzed the human rights abuses that preceded atrocities. Both Mark and Cingranelli are investigators at the CIRIGHTS project, which tracks human rights data from across the world.

AWARDS & RECOGNITION

First Year Student Excellence Award for Research in Human Rights

KEVIN O'CONNELL & LIAM RUPPRECHT

"Food Councils and Federal Committees: Community Responses to Inaction on Food Insecurity by Government"

<https://orb.binghamton.edu/alpenglowjournal/vol11/iss1/9/>

"Waging War on Peacebuilders: Digital Sexual Violence as a Barrier to Peace"

ABIGAIL CONNORS

Binghamton University Undergraduate Journal (BUJJ)

<https://orb.binghamton.edu/alpenglowjournal/vol10/iss2/9/>

STUDENT INTERNSHIPS

The Human Rights Institute connects students with internships with many of our partners. Through their internships, students gain first hand experience with careers in law, policymaking, social services, human rights research and writing, and advocacy. We are grateful to our partners for making these opportunities available.

Throughout my internship at the Broome County Public Defender's Office this semester, I have gained so many new experiences and insights about the field of criminal law. I had the opportunity to observe dozens of court proceedings, including custody, drug possession, weapons possession, sexual assault, child abuse, and arson—all of which were very new to me. I got to speak with some judges from both county and city courts to hear about their career paths, and got advice about law school and early career development from them and some of the more senior attorneys. I also further refined my legal research skills and became proficient in Westlaw, which I know will be useful in law school and my future career.

Having been able to intern with the Crime Victims Assistance Center, I now have a deeper and more sensitive understanding of crime prevention, advocacy for victims, and the many, many resources victims need to rebuild after a crime.

Professionally, this internship has proven to be an invaluable experience; I have never worked in an office setting before. Learning to work effectively in a more professional environment has enabled me to feel comfortable in future internships and jobs. I have also learned so much within the field of immigration law... Perhaps most importantly, I firmly believe that I have developed on a personal level from working with the ACA. There were many moments I recall that have affected me deeply and reestablished my resolve to work in the field of law.

As my internship comes to a close, I am genuinely grateful for the experiences I gained. Working with Release Wellness strengthened my research skills, expanded my understanding of nonprofit fundraising, and gave me a richer appreciation for the behind-the-scenes labor that makes community wellness initiatives possible.

CURRICULAR HIGHLIGHTS

HRI offered a range of classes over the Summer and Winter in addition to the regular semester.

Human Rights and Global Politics in the Movies

What Can Human Rights Films Do?

Climate, Crime & Human Rights

K-Pop & Human Rights

Peacebuilding in Troubled Times

Congo: Rights in Conflict

SELECTED PUBLICATIONS BY HRI AFFILIATES

Books:

Davey, Christopher. The Banyamulenge Soldier: Genocide between Congo and Rwanda. Ann Arbor: University of Michigan Press, 2025. <https://press.umich.edu/Books/T/The-Banyamulenge-Soldier2>

Mark, Skip, Ashlea Rundlett, Mikhail Filippov and David Cingranelli. Science and the Study of Human Rights. Forthcoming 2026. Albany: SUNY Press

Journal Articles:

Attai, Nikoli. "Wrestling with the Wajang: Trans Femininities and the Queer Potential of Gendered Defiance." TSQ: Transgender Studies Quarterly 12, no. 3 (August 1, 2025): 279–296. <https://doi.org/10.1215/23289252-11822825>

Cairncross, Chloe, Christopher P. Davey, Charles Guenther, James Kang, Bryce Lambright, Layla Modlin, Wai Wai Nu, Frank Okyere Osei, Diane Tayong, and Leah Wardlaw. Campus Dialogue Guidebook 2025. Binghamton, NY: Binghamton University Open Repository, August 12, 2025. <https://orb.binghamton.edu/books/4/>

Davey, Christopher. "Centering Survivor Voices and Decentering Myself: Teaching Rwanda through an Antiracist Praxis." In Towards a Community of Antiracist Praxis in Higher Education, Routledge, 2025. <https://www.taylorfrancis.com/chapters/edit/10.4324/9781003472087-6/centering-survivor-voices-decentering-christopher-davey?context=ubx&refId=e588ddb5-bc02-465b-a03b-08fab44ab5e5>

Davey, Christopher, et al. "How to Conduct Post-Atrocity Research: Key Insights from Practitioners in the Field." The Conversation, October 2025. <https://theconversation.com/how-to-conduct-post-atrocity-research-key-insights-from-practitioners-in-the-field-258245>

- Davey, Christopher, and Claudine Kuradusenge-McLeod. "Erasing Refugees: Displaced Memories of Camps as Killing Fields in the First Congo War." In Navigating Post-Genocide Social Relations: Memory, Power and Legacy in Rwanda. Journal of Genocide Research 27, no. 2 (2025). <https://doi.org/10.1080/14623528.2025.2510730>
- Davey, Christopher, et al. "Lessons from the Field: Experts Weigh in on Years of Conducting Fieldwork in Post-Atrocity Zones." Journal of Genocide Research 27, no. 2 (2025). <https://doi.org/10.1080/14623528.2025.2500140>
- Davey, Christopher supervised BU Graduate Students Microdynamics of Mass Atrocity Working Paper Series. Binghamton, NY: Institute for Genocide and Mass Atrocity Prevention, Binghamton University, 2025. <https://orb.binghamton.edu/microdynamicspapers/>
- Gajewski, Aidan, Valerie Imbruce, Barrett Brenton, and Monica Adams. 2025. "The Vital Role of University - Community Organization Partnerships to Address Food Security." Practicing Anthropology, November, 1–8. doi:10.1080/08884552.2025.2560009.
- Martinez, Melissa and David Cingranelli. "Domestic Institutions and Human Rights." In Teaching Human Rights in Political Science, edited by Shereen Hertel and David Richards. Forthcoming February 2026. Cheltenham, UK: Elgar Press.
- Mark, Skip and David Cingranelli. "The Human Rights Sequence Theory of Atrocity: A Comparative Analysis." Journal of Comparative Policy Analysis: Research and Practice (2025): 1–17.
- Reeves, Anthony. "Agents of Our Interests: The Moral Claim to Legal Process." Philosophers' Imprint 25, no. 33.
- Valayden, Diren and Alexandra S. Moore. "'Dominating the Battlespace': Right-wing Tactical Performance and the Spatial Politics of Post democracy." Environment and Planning D: Society and Space 43.3 (June 2025): 464-483. <https://doi.org/10.1177/02637758241292995>
- Valayden, Diren. 2025. "The Political Right as Experience: Right-Wing Politics and Belonging." Belonging 1(1-2): 29-34.

OUR PARTNERS

We are grateful for our collaboration with:

American Civic Association
Association of Human Rights Institutes (AHRI)
Broome County Assigned Counsel Program
Broome County Public Defender's Office
Center for Civic Engagement, Binghamton University
Center for Middle East and North Africa Studies, Binghamton University
Fleishman Center for Career Services, Binghamton University
The Ghana Think Tank
Helena Kennedy Centre for International Justice, Sheffield Hallam University
Journey's End Refugee Services
JUST: Justice and Unity for the Southern Tier
Legal Services of Central New York
LifePatch, Indonesia
Smashing Dandelions Production Co.
Sustainable Communities Transdisciplinary Area of Excellence, Binghamton University
Toronto Metropolitan University
Undergraduate Research Program, Binghamton University
University of Brescia, Italy

HUMAN RIGHTS
INSTITUTE

BINGHAMTON
UNIVERSITY