

*This figure represents the electrochemistry process that takes place in a lithium-ion battery during charge and discharge. As the battery is being discharged, lithium ions are intercalated into the cathode. As the battery charges, lithium ions are removed from the layers of cathode.